Title: EGYPTIAN INFLUENCES ON MALAYA'S MUSLIM KAUM MUDA (YOUNG FACTION) BEFORE WORLD WAR II

Abstract: The Kaum Muda (Young Faction) traced its origin from the reformist thought of Rashid Rida who published the journal al-Minar in Egypt. To disseminate their reformist thought, the Young Faction published al-Minar on 23 July 1905, a journal which was directly influenced by al-Minar. Apart from publishing the journal, the Kaum Muda also published books and novels with reformist themes, particularly on the emancipation of women. Together with the printed media, the Kaum Muda also used the madrasah for modern religious instruction, which was associated with the reformist thought, to spread their ideas and bring progress to Malay society.

Author: Ottman, Mohamad Reduan

Institution: Universiti Malaya, Depatment of History, Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia

E-mail: mreaduan@um.edu.my, abuharun@um.edu.my

Publisher: INT ISLAMIC UNIV MALAYSIA

Place of Publication: NO 34 PERSIARAN DUTA, TAMAN DUTA, KUALA LUMPUR, 56400, MALAYSIA

Source Information: Web of Science Categories: Religion

Research Areas: Religion

Publisher Code: NA01

ISSN: 0194-4870

Source Abbrev: AL-Shajarah

Source Category: 33

Cited Reference Count: 173

Accession Number: WOS:000320677700001

Language: English

Document Type: Article

Address: Ottman, Mohamad Reduan, Universiti Malaya, Department of History, Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia; Harun, Abu Harun, Universiti Malaya, Faculty of Arts and Social Sciences, Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia.

E-mail Address: mreaduan@um.edu.my, abuharun@um.edu.my

Author identifiers:

Author ID: Ottman, Mohamad Reduan: M-9776-2013

Publisher: INT ISLAMIC UNIV MALAYSIA

Publication Place: NO 34 PERSIARAN DUTA, TAMAN DUTA, KUALA LUMPUR, 56400, MALAYSIA

Web of Science Categories: Religion

Research Areas: Religion

Publisher Code: NA01

ISSN: 0194-4870

Source Abbrev: AL-Shajarah

Source Category: 33