Evaluation of Morphodynamic Changes in the Vicinity of Low-Crested Breakwater on Cohesive Shore of Carey Island, Malaysia

Ariiza Fitri
Department of Civil Engineering, Faculty of Engineering, Malaya University, Kuala Lumpur 50603, Malaysia
arizazafitri@gmail.com

Roslan Hashim
Department of Civil Engineering, Faculty of Engineering, Malaya University and, Institute of Ocean and Earth Sciences (IOES), Malaya University, Kuala Lumpur 50603, Malaysia
roslan@um.edu.my

Ki-Hi Song
Department of Civil Engineering, Inha University, 100 Inha-ro, Nam-gu, Incheon 402-751, Republic of Korea
ksong@inha.ac.kr

Sherwin Motamed
Department of Civil Engineering, Faculty of Engineering, Malaya University and, Institute of Ocean and Earth Sciences (IOES), Malaya University, Kuala Lumpur 50603, Malaysia
sherein@um.edu.my

Received 19 September 2015
Accepted 1 December 2015
Published

There is no adequate research available on the responses of coastal morphodynamic to low-crested breakwaters along the cohesive shore. Since the shore responses to coastal structures vary widely among different case studies, it is necessary to evaluate the performance of these structures before they are chosen as a coastal protection alternative. In the...