Proceedings of the 3rd International Seminar on Quality and Affordable Education

"Developing Quality and Affordable Education for All"
International developments in education in the 21st century have long been seen as a way for researchers and academics to find appropriate solutions for issues in educational practice.

Data from the Education Development Index (EDI), countries such as Indonesia, Malaysia, the Philippines, Vietnam, Myanmar and Cambodia are among nations listed in the EDI. Other countries such as Brunel Darussalam are listed at higher level in the list, suggesting that their level of education quality can be interpreted as somewhat low.

This means that efforts are needed to expand access to educational capabilities without regard for geographical or economic status and enhancing quality and relevance of education. Another focus is to strengthen educational administration and education service accountability all over the world by 2015.

This international seminar is held annually by three prestigious universities. In the previous series, ISQAE had succeeded in attracting many professional academicians to present their findings and created many opportunities for academic networking among participants.

Hence, ISQAE 2014 is the third international seminar in the series organized by the Faculty of Education, University of Malaya. This seminar will focus on examining the cultural consequences of educational developments, application of research findings at local and international level as well as evaluation of the teaching and learning process. This will indirectly guarantee the quality of education that is ever advancing and hence place it on the right platform.
