ABSTRACT

The Aceh Ulema Consultative Assembly (MPU) is the only provincial council of ulama that officially recognize under the Indonesian law. The recognition is not only noted under the Indonesian basic constitution (UUD 1945), but also constituted at the implementation level under the provincial law. The legal recognition toward the existence of MPU is a tireless effort since the Sultanate of Aceh was existed until the ending of long-term conflict between the Free Aceh Movement (GAM) and the Indonesian central government in Jakarta post- tsunami disaster in 2004. Although the legal right has been granted for the MPU, at the implementation level, however, it could not be fully functioned. This paper aims to observe the jurisdiction of the MPU Aceh under the Indonesian legislation including the constraints faced by them to act in accordance to right given by the law. This is a qualitative study that use related literatures review as the main sources of data. Additionally, the data is gathered through documentary studies and in-depth interviews with related parties. The data collected is analysed using qualitative methods and it is then presented in a descriptive form. This study found that the MPU Aceh has a wide jurisdiction ranging from the field of religion, government, development, socio-cultural and community to the Islamic economic. Nevertheless, the main problem finding is imperfect understanding about implementation of sharia, particularly among the government official it cause difficult expansion of the role of ulama in the field of government.
