This article has been strengthened and clarified thoroughly both in terms of writing style and presentation. I appreciate that my comments and those of the other reviewer were considered and incorporated well. The article is clear and logical in its organization and content analysis, is highly informative, and the implications for end-of-life care nursing education, policy, and everyday nursing practice with clients/families and staff are important and practical. I am convinced the study design and data analysis used reliable and ethical methods and procedures, with the scholarly literature and a trusted definition of end-of-life care used to provide a strong framework to contain the discussion and recommendations. The study leaders and authors are to be commended for their excellent work and perseverance which has brought this important study and article to a point where I can fully recommend its publication 'as is' with no changes. Well done!
