The development of modern livestock and agriculture industry has produced a lot of products which are more rapid and economically advantageous. Recently, polemics has arisen in poultry industry in terms of sanctity of animal being fed by najs and filth that can be considered as al-jallalah, whether the animals are halal or haram being consumed by human. This study will be focus into al-jallalah concept based on fiqh perspective. Observations will be done based on legal sources of Islam, including the current fatwa in Malaysia. This study found, there were several current issues such as fish and plants that live in unclean environments that may be assumed (Qiyas) as al-jallalah. As a solution, al-istibra instruments is one of the approach that can be used as an alternative purification of al-jallalah issues until it disappears due to the odor, taste and color.
