Al-Quran, which has been revealed to the Prophet Muhammad (PBUH), is a constitution and the main source of knowledge which needs to be mastered and learnt by all Muslims. Besides that, al-Quran is also an important element in the daily practices of a Muslim. Hence, the Muslim youth needs to concentrate on learning and understanding the contents of al-Quran especially from the revelation aspect. Studying and teaching of al-Quran is a humble and respectful practice that is highly encouraged by Islam. Taking in mind the abiotic culture, the government is working hand in hand with the Ministry of Education to revise teaching of al-Quran as an important component in Islamic Education in schools. Nonetheless, how far can its implementation in schools contribute towards increasing student awareness in the learning of al-Quran? This article will explore and discuss in depth the potential challenges while working towards the success of implementing al-Quran Education in schools at present.
